

Washington and Grizzly Hill Weekly Update September 28 - October 2

Good Afternoon TRES Community,

This is an earlier than usual weekly update

Welcome to week seven!

This week's schedule is slightly different than our normal schedule.

Monday is a staff development day. This means the teachers will be in training during work hours and will not be able to Zoom with your students. However, each teacher has provided their students with work to be completed for the day. Continuity in learning is always important and certainly more important now than in past years. If you have a question about Monday, please contact your student's teacher.

The staff will be attending a training on best practices when using our new EL (Expeditionary Learning) curriculum. This training is beneficial to the staff as it will allow them to let your kids increase their understanding of not only the world around them but also their place in the world. There is a lot of learning going on this year!

Distance Learning and Remote Learning

I've heard from students and parents that some really like remote learning and hope to stay in that schedule and that some really want to be in the classroom. The staff, school board and myself are working together to put in place procedures to allow both a return to the classroom in a hybrid schedule for students who want to come back and also maintain our remote learning for those who have grown to really like what we are currently providing. Next week I will send a survey, asking for input on specifics related to allowing for both possibilities. Keep a lookout for it and I appreciate your input!

Lastly, I've just been informed about a possible PSPS on Sunday and Monday. This will not change our educational plan for Monday but if the power is off on Tuesday, your teachers and I will send another Remind with an update.

That's it for today. Stay safe and always feel free to call or stop by if you have any questions.

Sincerely, Melissa M.
